

At-Risk, Overage Students / Data Report

September 2016

Pinellas County Schools / At-Risk / Overage SummaryCompiled by the Office of Assessment, Accountability and Research*

The district continues to look at the number of “overage” students in our schools, especially those in our traditional schools to ensure that they are being properly supported.

The data are complex, in part because students may be “overage” but not behind academically. To get closer to identifying students who are at-risk, we have provided data on the number of students who are overage and also Level 1 on the most recent FSA ELA (Reading) test (2016 results).

The data and the list of students have been provided to Teaching and Learning to support their plans for overage students, with the provision that these lists are just a starting point as some students may be progressing adequately in school despite the fact that they are overage.

Districtwide Summary (grades 3-10)

With the TWO variables combined (overage and ELA Level 1), 1,267 students were identified districtwide, about 1% of the district’s total student population.

Since some of those students were already being supported in alternative school settings, we have only provided a list of students who are in our traditional, non-charter schools.

1,093 students total districtwide (in our traditional schools):

- 493 in High School
- 325 in Middle School
- 275 in Elementary School

The data below provides a distribution by school and includes students who were enrolled at the school in August.

We may find that some of these students are progressing adequately in school despite these risk factors so further examination is needed.
