Dear Seniors,

BY JACE CAMPBELL

Moving into your first day of high school may have seemed like an exciting adventure. You were one of the new kids. You had four years left to go before you would be an adult. Yowza! Those sweet, nineteen-year-olds in the class above you were so intimidating. Parents and teachers were always warning you about the dangers of high school, but you brushed them off. You were ready to get your education. You were ready to have fun. You were ready to get your degree. You were ready to start your life.

However, there was hope. Moving from the lower class to the upper class was a little more laid back. Teachers and students had a little more respect for you because you were about six feet away from them. You also had a little more independence because you didn’t need your parents to check your credits. You were in control. You wore your own clothes. You could do almost anything you wanted to.

But the biggest change for you was the realization that this was the last of your high school years. These were your last high school years to cherish.

BY JAC LIVRIGAN

At the beginning of senior year, senior Bryson Welton-Williams was involved in a fatal car accident outside of campus. His loss was felt throughout the student body. SNN would like to dedicate this spread to him.

“His death was a loss to our community and he will be missed greatly,” said Senior Kyra Barron.

"He made people feel good about themselves. When they were down, he made them feel up. ... He kept his head together, and he was a smart kid.”

Manny Sanders
Bryson Welton-Williams’ uncle

Cool Schools

BY JACLYN VARYTIS, DYSON WATERS

Senior Zakea Beavers never thought she would get into the University of Pennsylvania, she was certain, in fact, that she didn’t get in. On the day application season ended, the former student received an email notification from the University of Pennsylvania stating that she had been accepted into the university. Beavers is an English major and is currently studying to be a teacher.

At least two Lakewood seniors are continuing their education out of state.

Cool Schools

BY JACLYN VARYTIS, DYSON WATERS

Senior Zakea Beavers never thought she would get into the University of Pennsylvania, she was certain, in fact, that she didn’t get in. On the day application season ended, the former student received an email notification from the University of Pennsylvania stating that she had been accepted into the university. Beavers is an English major and is currently studying to be a teacher.

At least two Lakewood seniors are continuing their education out of state.

Cool Schools

BY JACLYN VARYTIS, DYSON WATERS

Senior Zakea Beavers never thought she would get into the University of Pennsylvania, she was certain, in fact, that she didn’t get in. On the day application season ended, the former student received an email notification from the University of Pennsylvania stating that she had been accepted into the university. Beavers is an English major and is currently studying to be a teacher.

At least two Lakewood seniors are continuing their education out of state.

Cool Schools

BY JACLYN VARYTIS, DYSON WATERS

Senior Zakea Beavers never thought she would get into the University of Pennsylvania, she was certain, in fact, that she didn’t get in. On the day application season ended, the former student received an email notification from the University of Pennsylvania stating that she had been accepted into the university. Beavers is an English major and is currently studying to be a teacher.

At least two Lakewood seniors are continuing their education out of state.

Cool Schools

BY JACLYN VARYTIS, DYSON WATERS

Senior Zakea Beavers never thought she would get into the University of Pennsylvania, she was certain, in fact, that she didn’t get in. On the day application season ended, the former student received an email notification from the University of Pennsylvania stating that she had been accepted into the university. Beavers is an English major and is currently studying to be a teacher.

At least two Lakewood seniors are continuing their education out of state.

Cool Schools

BY JACLYN VARYTIS, DYSON WATERS

Senior Zakea Beavers never thought she would get into the University of Pennsylvania, she was certain, in fact, that she didn’t get in. On the day application season ended, the former student received an email notification from the University of Pennsylvania stating that she had been accepted into the university. Beavers is an English major and is currently studying to be a teacher.

At least two Lakewood seniors are continuing their education out of state.