Background

- A significant portion of calories consumed by children are consumed at school.

- Federal child nutrition programs are an important source of nutritious, balanced meals.

- Despite progress in meal quality, work remains to improve children's diets.

- Research has consistently shown that American children do not meet current national dietary recommendations.
Background

Improving the nutritional profile of all foods sold in school is critical to:

- improve diet and overall health of American children
- ensure children from all income levels adopt healthful eating habits that will enable them to live productive lives.
Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act

- USDA has new authority to establish nutrition standards for all foods and beverages sold outside of the Federal child nutrition programs in schools.

- The provisions specify that the nutrition standards shall apply to all foods sold:
  - outside the school meal programs;
  - on the school campus; and
  - at any time during the school day.

Section 208, HHFKA
Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act

Requires standards be consistent with most recent Dietary Guidelines for Americans

Directs the Secretary to consider:

- authoritative scientific recommendations,
- existing school nutrition standards,
- current State and local standards,
- practical application of standards and
- exemptions for school-sponsored fundraisers.
Impact on students

The proposed changes are intended to:

- improve the health of the Nation’s children,

- increase consumption of healthful foods during the school day and

- create an environment that reinforces the development of healthy eating habits.
Minimum Standards

- The nutrition standards for all foods sold in school are minimum standards.

- Additional State or local standards are allowed if consistent with the final rule.
Proposal Development

USDA considered a wide range of information available on competitive foods, including:

- Recommendations of the 2007 Institute of Medicine (IOM) Report;
- USDA’s HUSSC standards;
- Existing State and local standards;
- Existing voluntary standards and recommendations; and
- Input from nutrition program stakeholders.
Further Considerations

- The practical application of standards in school settings;
- Context of new meal patterns for the Federal school meal programs;
- Support of the federally-reimbursed school nutrition programs as the major source of foods and beverages offered at school;
Importance of Public Comments

USDA requests public consideration and comment on the relative merits of each proposed provision.

Note that some provisions contain specific alternatives for comment.
