Families often ask, “What can I do to help my child get ready for kindergarten?”

We’ve got you covered! Keep reading for tips, mini-moment videos, and resources.

It all matters!

Being ready for kindergarten is about way more than the ABCs and 123s and we want to be sure we are helping children grow in all areas of their development. Consider the following:

Social and Emotional Development is critical to children’s success in kindergarten and includes things such as recognizing and managing feelings, taking turns and sharing, and using words to solve problems.

Physical Development impacts other areas of development. Activities include physical play, safety, nutrition, and personal care.

Approaches to Learning involves children’s attitudes and how they approach learning such as persistence, curiosity, attention to tasks, planning and creativity.

Language and Literacy development is a complex process that involves speaking and listening and emergent reading and writing. Children are participating in conversations, enjoying books more and asking questions, and naming letters and connecting them to sounds.

Mathematical Thinking helps children make sense of the world. It involves counting, putting quantities together and taking them apart, identifying patterns and shapes, and measuring.

Scientific Inquiry and Social Studies helps children explore and learn about the world around them.

Creative Expression Through the Arts provides opportunities for children to express ideas and feelings in different ways such as music, creative movement, play, and art.

Get Ready to Read

Reading a book together with your child is the most important activity you can do to prepare your child to succeed as a reader. Fill your story times with a variety of books. Reading books aloud to children stimulates their imagination and expands their understanding of the world around them. It helps them develop language, sharpen their listening skills and begin to understand how books and print work.

Make reading part of family life by reading aloud to your child at least once a day at a regularly scheduled time. Don’t worry if your child wants to hear the same book over and over. While it may be boring for you, hearing the same book provides predictability and builds confidence.

Be consistent, be patient and watch your child fall in love with books.

Don’t Worry!
We’ve Got You Covered!

Each day, visit pcsb.org/KG for a “100-days-’til-kindergarten-mini-moment.” Each of these short videos will introduce a quick tip, idea, or activity that you can do right away with your child. The videos focus on all areas of development and will help your child enter kindergarten with joy and confidence!

Take the 100 Book Challenge!

Research clearly shows that reading to children at a young age has a direct effect on schooling outcomes including reading and cognitive skills later in life. Reading to children also lets them know that you consider it a worthwhile activity and will help them learn to fall in love with books. We challenge you and your child to read a book each day from May 2 until the first day of kindergarten. Happy reading!
